Daniel O'Leary's Last Message on the Joy of Creation

Well known writer, theologian and spiritual guide Daniel O'Leary has enthralled readers for decades with his exploration of God's love energy at the heart of the evolving universe and our everyday lives. As his long time publisher, Columba Books is delighted to share his posthumous masterpiece Horizons of Hope.

A compilation of his unfinished working notes, including a thorough introduction, Horizons of Hope also includes a number of his articles written for The Tablet over the years that support the theology outlined in said introduction.

Within these pages, Daniel conveys his ministry to readers, communicating how one can 'begin with the heart' to discover 'a new way of seeing, a new way of being', of recognising God in the ordinary and extraordinary moments of our days and nights.

Daniel's sincere belief that modern Christians benefit from discoveries in cosmology and science leads them to develop a truly incarnational faith. Daniel had been ruminating on this theme when he was diagnosed with cancer, forcing him to put his work on hold while he came to terms with what was happening to him. These notes and the introduction to Horizons of Hope were found on his laptop by his lifelong friend and confidant Margaret Siberry who felt they deserved to see the light of the day.

The deep inner conviction of being loved unconditionally by God expressed within this book could not have come at a more opportune time when the world and its inhabitants are grappling with global upheaval. Horizons of Hope is Daniel's inspirational legacy and he lives on through the excitement captured in these pages.
