Here is a little but lovely story which I often remember but find it easier to share on your website. I taught Adrian, a 17 year old. He was a difficult student to teach and I was always relieved when he was absent! In religion class one day he said, “Miss, when my sister brought home her new baby from hospital and I was looking at all her little fingers and toes I knew there was a God”. Adrian was a tough lad but he had no problem in sharing his story in front of his peers.’
